

How to deliver GUK's values in your everyday work

GUK's company values are the foundation of our business. They're a set of guiding principles that speak volumes about who we are and what we stand for and set us apart from our competitors. But in all the hustle and bustle of a busy working role, how do you apply them in the day-to-day?

We truly believe that our values are living values – not just a list of words to be referred to when it suits us. So, we've looked more closely at ways we can all embody these values in our work. You may well be able to think of your own examples to add to this list, too.

How to live the GUK values at work

Show Continuous Improvement

Look for ways to improve your role at your site. Can you do something extra to make your job better, or more efficient, for example? Monitor your work, take feedback onboard and implement changes. If you've got ideas on how to improve the site you're working at, talk to your line manager. Keeping up to date with MyPathway courses and other training opportunities are also great ways to keep improving your role.

Act With Integrity

Acting with integrity means doing the right thing. If you notice something that needs to be sorted, don't ignore it. It might not be your problem, but you can still provide solutions or help to avoid issues. Representing GUK with honesty and professionalism are key to bringing integrity to your role.

Deliver Service Excellence

Delivering the best possible service allows GUK to give excellent service to all our clients. That equals happy clients and happy teams, so it really is win-win.

Bring Passion to Your Role

Being passionate about your job, and being committed to doing it properly, brings your passion to work. Plus, clients will notice your care and attention to detail, and see that you have a sense of pride in your job.

Take a Seamless Team Approach

Teamwork makes the dream work. Working smoothly as a part of a team, with either colleagues from GUK or other staff on sites, delivers a seamless approach. That makes the client's life easier, and your role more enjoyable.

Show Understanding Through Partnership

It's true what they say: two heads are better than one, and the same applies in business. Working together with our clients enables us to provide the best service possible.

Want to know more about what makes us tick? Read our post on the true value of company values.

Security & Services
Solutions

Reception & Concierge
Services